

Department of Diagnostic Imaging & Radiology

University Hospitals utilizes the latest methods and state-of-the-art technology in diagnostic imaging and radiology. Advanced imaging techniques allow our skilled clinicians to make fast and accurate diagnoses so that patients can receive treatment as quickly as possible. Diagnostic imaging is performed at various convenient locations throughout the region and includes tests such as computerized tomography (CT scan), magnetic resonance imaging (MRI), digital mammography and ultrasound.

Our 22 leading-edge facilities, conveniently located throughout Northeast Ohio, are accredited by the American College of Radiology.

UH Department of Diagnostic Imaging & Radiology features:

- Dedicated specialty imaging expertise (UH radiologists have extensive, specialized education and training)
- Web-based images available to your physician quickly and on demand 24/7 (allows physicians to receive and view scans and discuss treatment simultaneously)
- Utilization of low-dose imaging
- Standardized protocols and image quality at all UH facilities
- Locally read images
- UH radiologists available to consult with ordering physicians
- 24/7 reading of scans
- Same-day and next-day service available
- Ease in ordering, setting appointments and obtaining required precertification
- Integration of images/scans with electronic medical records of UH patients
- Facilities accredited by the American College of Radiology

If you have a diagnostic imaging or radiology procedure at another facility (one not affiliated with University Hospitals), you may experience difficulty obtaining images in a timely manner, with no guarantee of image quality. In some cases, when a procedure is conducted by a non-UH facility, the scan will still need to be reviewed by a UH radiologist, which may result in an additional cost to you, the patient.

For these reasons, and many others, the right choice for the highest quality diagnostic imaging and radiology services is UH Department of Diagnostic Imaging & Radiology.
